Over the next decade employment opportunities for young people will improve, but will concentrate on the most qualified - for their formal level of education and key competences- young people, while those with lowest educational levels and skills will remain outside the labor market, accentuating labor inequalities observed during the crisis.

Without efforts to improve the employability of low-skilled young people, their risk of exclusion from the labor market is high. In addition to the years of education, the competences and skills acquired by these young people are also very important.

The 'Education and Training 2010' work programme emphasizes that education and training have a crucial role to play in meeting the many socio-economic, demographic, environmental and technological challenges facing Europe and its citizens today and in the years ahead.....CONTINUE

The screenshot shows a Facebook page for 'Active Citizenship and Decent Work'. The page header includes the Facebook logo, the name of the page, and navigation options like 'Home', 'Trova amici', and 'Assistenza'. The main content area features a red banner with the text 'ACTIVE CITIZENSHIP AND DECENT WORK' and an illustration of people at a table. Below the banner, there are options to 'Ti piace', 'Pagina seguita', and 'Condividi'. The 'Crea un post' section contains the text: 'Educational and training authorities, VET providers, trade unions and employer's organizations, supporting people with fewer opportunities, will have the opportunity to get to know with the developed training material and the set of the innovative educational materials that have been developed. It is a tool that decisively contributes to the education of youth adults with fewer opportunities on social and civic competences and entrepreneurial skills, as well as the step-by-step integration into the labor market.' The right sidebar shows the page's organization, including the number of likes (56) and followers (56).

ACTIVE CITIZENSHIP AND DECENT WORK

2015-1-ES01-KA204-016067

The main aim of this project is to develop active learning methodologies, pedagogical approaches and training materials especially designed to improve social and civic competencies and the sense of initiative and entrepreneurship of young adults with fewer opportunities.

ACTIVE CITIZENSHIP
AND DECENT WORK

2015-1-ES01-KA204-016067

The intellectual output of the project is a toolkit to support a training program especially created to develop these key competences, using an innovative approach to adapt the training method to the special needs of young adults with fewer opportunities.

We want to promote the equal opportunities of these young adults, improve their opportunities to get a decent job and promote social entrepreneurship.
